

What is Claimed:

1. A customizable web site access system as substantially described and depicted herein.
2. A method of presenting a plurality of web sites in a user-customized manner.
3. An interactive display for entering user preferences for web site access as substantially
- 5 described and depicted herein.
4. An interactive display for navigating a pre-established set of web sites as substantially described and depicted herein.
5. A customizable web site access system, said system comprising:

a host processor, wherein said host processor operates under the direction of a program;

10 a user terminal, wherein said user terminal is in communication with said host processor;

and

wherein said program directs said host processor to send a prompt through said user terminal for entry of a list of desired web sites and for entry of a display duration for said list of web sites, and wherein said program directs said host processor to sequence through said list of 15 desired web sites and display them through said user terminal for the entered display duration.

6. The system of claim 5, wherein said program directs said host processor to send a prompt through said user terminal for entry of a number of times to replay said list of web sites.
7. The system of claim 5, wherein said program directs said host processor to send a prompt through said user terminal for entry of an order of display of said list of desired web sites.